CONTENTS

Preface 9

Introduction 11

Nikutai no hanran: From Murobushi to Hijikata

1. Words of Dance, Dancing Words: Corporeal Literatures 17
2. Manifesting Bodies, Manifesting Words 18
3. Constructing Diverse Bodies: Hijikata Elaborates Corporealities 22
4. Theory and Practice: Towards Hijikata’s Corporeal Words 27
5. Hijikata’s Dance of Terrorism: Naked Words, Naked Bodies 29
6. Hijikata’s Non-human Theatre 30
7. The Body Observes the Study on the Body 32

From Hijikata To Murobushi

1. Dance/Death as a Political Choice: The 1960s 39
2. Murobushi Shifting from Action Art towards the Rebellion of the nikutai 42
3. Shugendō, yamabushi and the Wandering Zarathustra: A further Step towards the Outside Corporeality 44
4. Mobile Immobility and Immobile Motility: miira and sokushinbutsu 49
5. Dairakudakan, Ariadone no kai and Butô ha Sebi 51
6. A Question of Gender? 54
7. Komuso: Self-mummification of the Acéphale 56
8. Lotus Cabaret, Ankoku Takarazuka and the Eternal Darkness of Hinagata 60
9. Outside... Japan (?): The Explosion of Butoh in Paris 62
10. Zarathustra Choreographing Women 66
12. Murobushi’s Non-human Theatre and Reterritorialisation: quick silver on the Edge 73
13. Murobushi Kô at Torcito Parco Danza I: quick silver’s Collision with Atnarat 77
14. Kinetics of Non-kinetics: keiren and taoreru 81
15. Dancing Politically versus Aesthetics of Impossibility 84

References 87
Illustrations 95
Illustration Credits 107