

Contents

Introduction

Gender Models, Alternative Communities and Women's Utopianism	11
--	----

Chapter 1

Female Agency in Margaret Cavendish's Utopian Space	43
--	----

- | | |
|---|----|
| 1.1. Alternative Models of Women's Coexistence and Resistance in Bell in Campo | 48 |
| 1.2. The Closet Drama: A Form of Empowerment
for a New Female Identity | 72 |
| 1.3. The Blazing World : A Romancical, Philosophical and Fantastical Speculation | 78 |

Chapter 2

Utopian Speculations on Women's Pleasure, Education and Self-determination: The Enclosed Space of the 'Convent' in Margaret Cavendish and Mary Astell	117
--	-----

- | | |
|--|-----|
| 2.1. (Re)-Appropriation of the Female Self and the Female Body in Margaret Cavendish's
The Convent of Pleasure | 126 |
| 2.2. Women's Advancement, True-Spiritual Fulfilment and Female Friendship: Utopianism and 'Feminism' in Mary Astell's A Serious Proposal to the Ladies,
Part I and II | 154 |

Chapter 3

'New' World Settings and Utopian/Dystopian Discourses in Aphra Behn

197

- 3.1. Manifold and Alternative Readings of Aphra Behn's
Oroonoko and its Utopian and Dystopian Elements:
A Critical Perspective 208
- 3.2. The "Female Pen": An Ambiguous Tool for Constructing and Deconstructing the Mechanisms of Patriarchal and Colonial Order 233
- 3.3. The Widow Ranter and the Controversial Representation of New World's (Dis)utopian Community(ies) 245