

Acknowledgments	xi
List of Contributors	xiii
List of Abbreviations	xvii

Introduction Jeanne Dubino	1
--------------------------------------	---

Part I Woolf's Engagement with the Marketplace

One	Reading, Taking Notes, and Writing: Virginia Stephen's Reviewing Practice Beth Rigel Daugherty	27
Two	Circulating Ideas and Selling Periodicals: Leonard Woolf, the Nation and Athenaeum , and Topical Debate Elizabeth Dickens	43
Three	Woolf's Editorial Self-Censorship and Risk-Taking in Jacob's Room Vara Neverow	57
Four	Between Writing and Truth: Woolf's Positive Nihilism Jeanette McVicker	73

Part II Woolf's Relationship to the Marketplace

Five	How to Strike a Contemporary: Woolf, Mansfield, and Marketing Gossip Katie Macnamara	91
------	---	----

Six	Something of a Firebrand: Virginia Woolf and the Literary Reputation of Emily Brontë Heather Bean	107
Seven	Virginia Woolf and Gertrude Stein: Commerce, Bestsellers, and the Jew Karen Leick	121

Part III Woolf's Marketplaces

Eight	Virginia Woolf and the Middlebrow Market of the Familiar Essay Caroline Pollentier	137
Nine	Woolf Studies and Periodical Studies Patrick Collier	151
Ten	The "Keystone Public" and Virginia Woolf: A Room of One's Own, Time and Tide , and Cultural Hierarchies Melissa Sullivan	167
Eleven	"Murdering an Aunt or Two": Textual Practice and Narrative Form in Virginia Woolf's Metropolitan Market John K. Young	181

Part IV Marketing Woolf

Twelve	The "Grand Lady of Literature": Virginia Woolf in Italy under Fascism Elisa Bolchi	199
Thirteen	Translating Orlando in 1930s Fascist Italy: Virginia Woolf, Arnaldo Mondadori, and Alessandra Scalero Sara Villa	209
Fourteen	Appropriating Virginia Woolf for the New Humanism: Seward Collins and The Bookman , 1927–1933 Yuzu Uchida	223

Fifteen	Don't Judge a Cover by Its Woolf: Book Cover Images and the Marketing of Virginia Woolf's Work	237
	Jennie-Rebecca Falcetta
Index		253