

Table of Contents

About the Author	v
Preface	xi
Acknowledgements	xiii
Introduction	1
1. The Proposal of ‘Board Independence’	2
2. A Note on the Credit Crunch	3
3. Research Boundaries	4
4. The Structure of the Thesis and Research Issues	5
5. Research Methods	7
6. Summary	8
Chapter 1
Historical Review of Independence of Director	9
1. The Origin of Directors – Pre-1844	9
2. The Popularity of the Company – Until 1990	13
2.1. The Popularity of the Company as a Business Form	13
2.2. The Separation of Ownership and Management	15
2.3. A Deviation from Legislative Purpose	16
3. An Age that Directors Do Nothing; Evidence in the First Half of the Twentieth Century	17
4. Independent Directors as Actors in Corporate Governance – The Change in the Late-Twentieth-Century	20
4.1. Continuation or Change?	20
4.1.1. Arbitrary Management and Obedient Directors	20
4.1.2. Changes in the Boardroom	22
4.1.3. The Investment Company Act of 1940	23
4.2. The Debate in the US	24

4.3. The Development in the UK	29
4.3.1. The Initiation of Non-Executive Directors	29
4.3.2. Governmental Reports in the 1990s	31
4.3.3. The Difference of Impetus	33
5. Conclusion	35

Chapter 2The Regulation on Independent Directors – Codification or Self-Regulation

1. The Historical Background	38
2. Is Codification the Only Choice?	42
2.1. Is the Law Absent?	42
2.1.1. General Duties on All Directors	42
2.1.2. A Distinction of Scope of Duties	44
2.1.3. A Vacuum in the Law	45
2.2. Is the Benefit of Codification Evident?	47
2.2.1. The Benefit of Further Clarification	47
2.2.2. The Benefit of Compulsive Force	48
2.2.3. The Limits of Codification	50
2.2.4. Conclusion	53
3. A Hybrid Model – The Combination of Self-Regulation and Public Control	53
3.1. ‘A Haven for Self-Regulation’ to a Hybrid Model	53
3.2. The Reasons for a Hybrid Model	56
3.3. A Hybrid Model and Board Independence	57
4. Conclusion	59

Chapter 3The Role of Independent Directors in Corporate Governance

1. The Functions of the Board and its Independent Directors	62
1.1. The Managerial Role – A Myth for Modern Board	62
1.2. The Oversight Role: An Undeniable Job of the Board and its Independent Directors	65
1.2.1. Why is Monitoring Important in Corporate Governance?	66
1.2.2. Why the Board is a Suitable Monitoring Body	67
1.2.3. The Independent Directors as Supervisor	71
1.2.4. ‘Strategic Monitoring’ and ‘Management Monitoring’	73
1.2.5. Monitoring in the Conflict of Interest	74
1.2.6. Monitoring in the Audit Committee	75
1.2.7. Conclusion and Caution	80
1.3. The Advisory Role – Can the Board and its Independent Directors Help Promote the Performance of the Management?	81
1.3.1. The Independent Directors as Counsel	83
1.3.2. Two-Level Advisory Process	85
1.3.3. Independent Directors as Arbiters	87

1.4. The Relational Role: A Bridge between the Company and Outside World	92
1.4.1. Arguments about ‘Social Responsibility’	93
1.4.2. Confusion between Shareholder and Stakeholder	96
1.4.3. The Solution of Companies Act 2006	99
1.4.4. The Independent Directors as Communication Link	101
1.4.5. The Relationship with the Stock Market	102
1.4.6. Authorities Using Independent Directors to Reach its Agenda	106
1.4.7. Independent Directors and Legal Rules	108
2. Conclusion	112

Chapter 4Competing Mechanisms in Corporate Governance

1. Institutional Investors and Shareholder Activism	116
1.1. The Rise of Institutional Investors	117
1.2. Obstacles in the way of Shareholder Activism	119
1.3. Shareholder Activism and Independent Directors	122
2. Market Force as Discipline	124
2.1. Market as a Monitoring Agent	124
2.1.1. Motivation of Diligent Management	124
2.1.2. The Limit of Self-Discipline	125
2.2. Market for Control	127
2.2.1. The Threat of Take-Over	127
2.2.2. The Limit of ‘Market for Control’	127
2.3. Independent Directors as Supplement	129
3. Pure Independent Board	131
3.1. Pure Independent Board and Two-Tier Board Structure	132
3.2. The Value of Insiders	134
3.3. The Effect on Mutual Relationships	136
4. Conclusion	138

Chapter 5Factors in Relation to the Performance of Independent Directors: The Obstacles and Solutions

1. The Independence of Directors	140
1.1. The Definition of ‘Independence’	141
1.2. The Mental Independence	144
1.3. The Solutions	145
1.3.1. From Listing to Disclosure	145
1.3.2. The Nominating Power	148
2. The Active Performance of Independent Directors	150
2.1. Short of Working Time	150
2.2. Shortage of Knowledge and Information	152
2.3. Boardroom Dynamic	154

Table of Contents

2.4.	'Groupthink'	155
2.5.	The Solutions	156
2.5.1.	Diversity of Directorships	156
2.5.2.	The Separation of Responsibilities of CEO and Chairman	160
2.5.3.	Working Model of the Board	161
2.5.4.	Full-time Independent Directors	162
2.5.5.	Remuneration of Independent Directors	163
3.	Conclusion	164
Chapter 6
Independent Directors' Exposure to Legal Liability		165
1.	Independent Directors and Legal Risk	166
1.1.	The Traditional Generosity of the Law	166
1.2.	More Stringent Standards in Modern Law Development	168
1.3.	From Shareholder Litigation to Disqualification Charge	170
2.	Is the Legal Risk So Threatening?	172
2.1.	The Fears of Independent Directors	172
2.2.	The Lesson Learned From Empirical Studies	174
2.3.	Reconsidering the Legal Risks	176
3.	Why are there Problems (and what can be done)?	176
3.1.	The Weak Incentive of Shareholders to Bring Directors to Justice	176
3.2.	The Limited Feature of Disqualification	180
3.3.	The Mystery of Case Law on Independent Directors	184
3.3.1.	The Difficulty of Retaining Balance and Standard	185
3.3.2.	The Rationality of Collective Liability	186
3.3.3.	A Deviation from Collective Liability	187
3.3.4.	A Code of Conduct of Independent Directors	188
3.3.5.	The Emphasis on Proper Procedures	190
4.	Conclusion	194
Conclusion		197
Bibliography		201
Index		213