List of Illustrations ................................................................. vii
Acknowledgements ................................................................... ix

Introduction .............................................................................. 1
Robert Crawford, Judith Smart and Kim Humphery

PART I: SELLING

Chapter One ............................................................................. 13
Class in a Tea Cup: The Bushells Brand, 1895–1920
Susie Khamis

Chapter Two ............................................................................. 27
Making the Market Modern: Sir Harold Clapp, Engineer of Consumption
John Sinclair

Chapter Three .......................................................................... 39
From a Seller’s Market to a Buyer’s Market: Advertising Looks Forward to the 1950s
Robert Crawford

Chapter Four ............................................................................. 55
“The 24-Hour Woman”: Feminism and the Politics of Consumption in 1980s Australia
Natasha Campo

PART II: BUYING

Chapter Five ............................................................................. 75
The Housewives’ Associations 1915–1950: Australia’s First Consumer Organisations
Judith Smart
Chapter Six .................................................................................................................. 97
Legislat ing in the Consumer Interest: The Victorian Consumers Protection Council 1964–1970
Amanda McLeod

Chapter Seven ............................................................................................................. 119
Inside Suburban “Persian Bazaars”: The Reception of Regional Shopping Centres in Sydney during the 1960s
Matt Bailey

Chapter Eight ............................................................................................................. 135
A Drink whose Time Had Finally Come: Wine Consumption in Australia 1950–1980
David Dunstan

PART III: EXCHANGING

Chapter Nine ............................................................................................................. 155
Glory Boxes: Female Domestic Consumption and Material Culture in Australia, 1930–1960
Moya McFadzean

Chapter Ten ................................................................................................................ 171
Consumer Goods, Housewives and Time Use in the Suburban Home from the 1920s to the 1980s
Tony Dingle

Chapter Eleven ......................................................................................................... 183
From Warehouse to Your House: Production, Consumption and the Reinvention of Inner Melbourne, 1906–2006
Seamus O’Hanlon

Chapter Twelve .................................................................................................. 197
Possession Island: Colonial and Contemporary Visions of Australian Consumerism
Kim Humphery

Contributors ............................................................................................................. 209

Index ......................................................................................................................... 213