

Contents

Table of Cases	ix
Table of Legislation, Conventions, and Treaties	xii
List of Abbreviations	xv
Introduction	xvii
1. Enlargement of the Council of Europe and Constitutionalization of the European Court of Human Rights	1
1. Introduction: a European Constitutional Court of Human Rights?	1
2. The ECHR system in transition	4
3. Contrasting approaches to ‘Strasbourg’: East and West	13
4. From individual justice to ‘pilot judgments’	25
5. A case study of pilot judgments: the Hutten-Czapska saga	27
6. Piercing the veil of the State	33
7. Pilots and semi-pilots	39
8. Is the European Court of Human Rights truly constitutional ?	44
Conclusion	48
2. Fundamental Rights and EU Enlargement	53
1. Introduction: the ascendance of rights in an enlarged EU	53
2. The EU Charter and human rights conditionality	55
3. CEE candidate states and the Charter	63
4. The sovereignty conundrum and the Charter	66
4.1 The sovereignty conundrum and nationalism	67
4.2 The sovereignty conundrum and constitutional doctrine	71
4.3 Rights, the Charter, and public concerns about sovereignty	74
4.4 Central and Eastern Europe and the ‘British protocol’	76
4.5 The EU as a human rights-based polity	78
5. Monitoring and sanctioning: the Article 7 mechanism and EU enlargement	80
5.1 On the road to Amsterdam	81
5.2 The Haider affair and the road to Nice	84
5.3 Towards a Fundamental Rights Agency and the road to Lisbon	87
Conclusion	92

3. Return of the Solange Ghost: the Supremacy of EU Law and the Democracy Paradox	99
1. Introduction: the Solange story, West and East	99
2. Solange in Central Europe: three decisions, three strategies	104
2.1 The Court as a guardian of EU powers (Czech Republic)	106
2.2 Scrutinizing only national law, not the EU's law (Hungary)	111
2.3 The EU as an international organization, 'So what's the problem?' (Poland)	120
3. The other side of the coin: the EU as a source of democratic argument in constitutional adjudication	126
4. Two faces of supremacy and two approaches to 'chapter 3 of Solange '	131
Conclusion	139
4. The EU and Constitutional Democracy in New Member States	143
1. Introduction: EU accession as a shield for democracy	143
2. Political conditionality	148
2.1 Before the accession	148
2.2 After the accession	155
3. Impact of political conditionality: case studies	166
3.1 The role of parliaments	166
3.2 Regionalization and decentralization	179
3.3 Minority rights	186
3.4 Ombudsman	199
Conclusion	201
Conclusions: European Constitutional Synergies	205
Bibliography	213
Index	227