Introduction: Medicine, Hygiene, and the Re-ordering of Empire
  Robert Peckham and David M. Pomfret

Part I Building for Health

Chapter 1  Combating Nuisance: Sanitation, Regulation, and the Politics of Property in Colonial Hong Kong
  Cecilia Chu

Chapter 2  ‘Tropicalizing’ Planning: Sanitation, Housing, and Technologies of Improvement in Colonial Singapore, 1907–1942
  Jiat-Hwee Chang

Chapter 3  Colonial Anxiety Counted: Plague and Census in Bombay and Calcutta, 1901
  Richard Harris and Robert Lewis

Part II Hygienic Enclaves

Chapter 4  “Beyond Risk of Contagion”: Childhood, Hill Stations, and the Planning of British and French Colonial Cities
  David M. Pomfret

Chapter 5  Planning Social Hygiene: From Contamination to Contagion in Interwar India
  Stephen Legg

Chapter 6  Matshed Laboratory: Colonies, Cultures, and Bacteriology
  Robert Peckham
Part III  Circulations

Chapter 7  “Contagion of the Depot”: The Government of Indian Emigration
Sunil S. Amrith

Chapter 8  Carter and Contagion in India: Anatomy, Geography, Morphology
Ruth Richardson

Chapter 9  Epidemics of Famine and Obesity: China as the Modern World
Sander L. Gilman

Chapter 10  ‘Rails, Roads, and Mosquito Foes’: The State Quinine Service in French Indochina
Laurence Monnais

Afterword: ‘Global Health’ and the Persistence of History
Priscilla Wald