

Contents

Editors' preface		vii
Bob Hepple	Is South African labour law fit for the global economy?	1
Paul Benjamin	Labour law beyond employment	21
Rochelle le Roux	The new unfair labour practice	41
Jan Theron	Prisoners of a paradigm: labour broking, the 'new services' and non-standard employment	58
Tamara Cohen	The relational contract of employment	84
André van Niekerk	Dismissal for misconduct – Ghosts of justice past, present and future	102
Anton Steenkamp and Craig Bosch	Labour dispute resolution under the 1995 LRA: Problems, pitfalls and potential	120
Tembeka Ngcuka- itobi	Precedent, separation of powers and the Constitutional Court	148
Emma Fergus and Alan Rycroft	Refining review	170
Darcy du Toit and Roger Ronnie	The necessary evolution of strike law	195
Shane Godfrey and Pamhidzai Bamu	The state of centralised bargaining and possible future trends	219
Ockert Dupper and Christoph Garbers	The prohibition of unfair discrimination and the pursuit of affirmative action in the South African workplace	244
LG Mpedi	The evolving relationship between labour law and social security	270

Marylyn Christian- son	People with disabilities inside (and outside) the South African workplace: The current status of the constitutional and statutory promises	286
Dennis Davis and Michelle le Roux	Changing the role of the corporation: A journey away from adversarialism	306
Debbie Collier and Pamhidzai Bamu	Linking trade to labour standards: A promis- ing synergy or a double-edged sword?	326
Halton Cheadle	Reception of international labour standards in common-law legal systems	348
INDEX		365