Chapter One
A Heroine in the Novel of Her Own Life

Chapter Two
Iphigenia: The diary of a young lady who wrote because she was bored

Chapter Three
Learning from Mama Blanca

Chapter Four
Criollo Consumerism

Chapter Five
A Discussion of Race in the Works of Teresa de la Parra

Chapter Six
The Three Colombian Lectures: Mothers, Sisters and Lovers

Chapter Seven
The First Lecture: The Conquest

Chapter Eight
The Second Lecture: The Colony

Chapter Nine
The Third Lecture: Independence

Chapter Ten
The Short Stories
Chapter Eleven ................................................................. 237
Teresa de la Parra’s Interview in Diario de la Marina
(La Habana, April 1, 1928 Section 1 pp1 and 16.)
by Armando Maribona

Chapter Twelve ................................................................. 243
Francis de Miomandre: A Few Words on Iphigenia

Chapter Thirteen ............................................................... 249
In Her Own Voice: Selections from the Letters of Teresa de la Parra

Chapter Fourteen ............................................................ 283
Bellevue-Fuenfría-Madrid Diary